

Trasformatorio

Laboratorio di arti performative e sostenibilit  Montalbano Elicona 2013-2015

contact:

Federico Bonelli

Linnaeusparkweg 113/III

1098CV

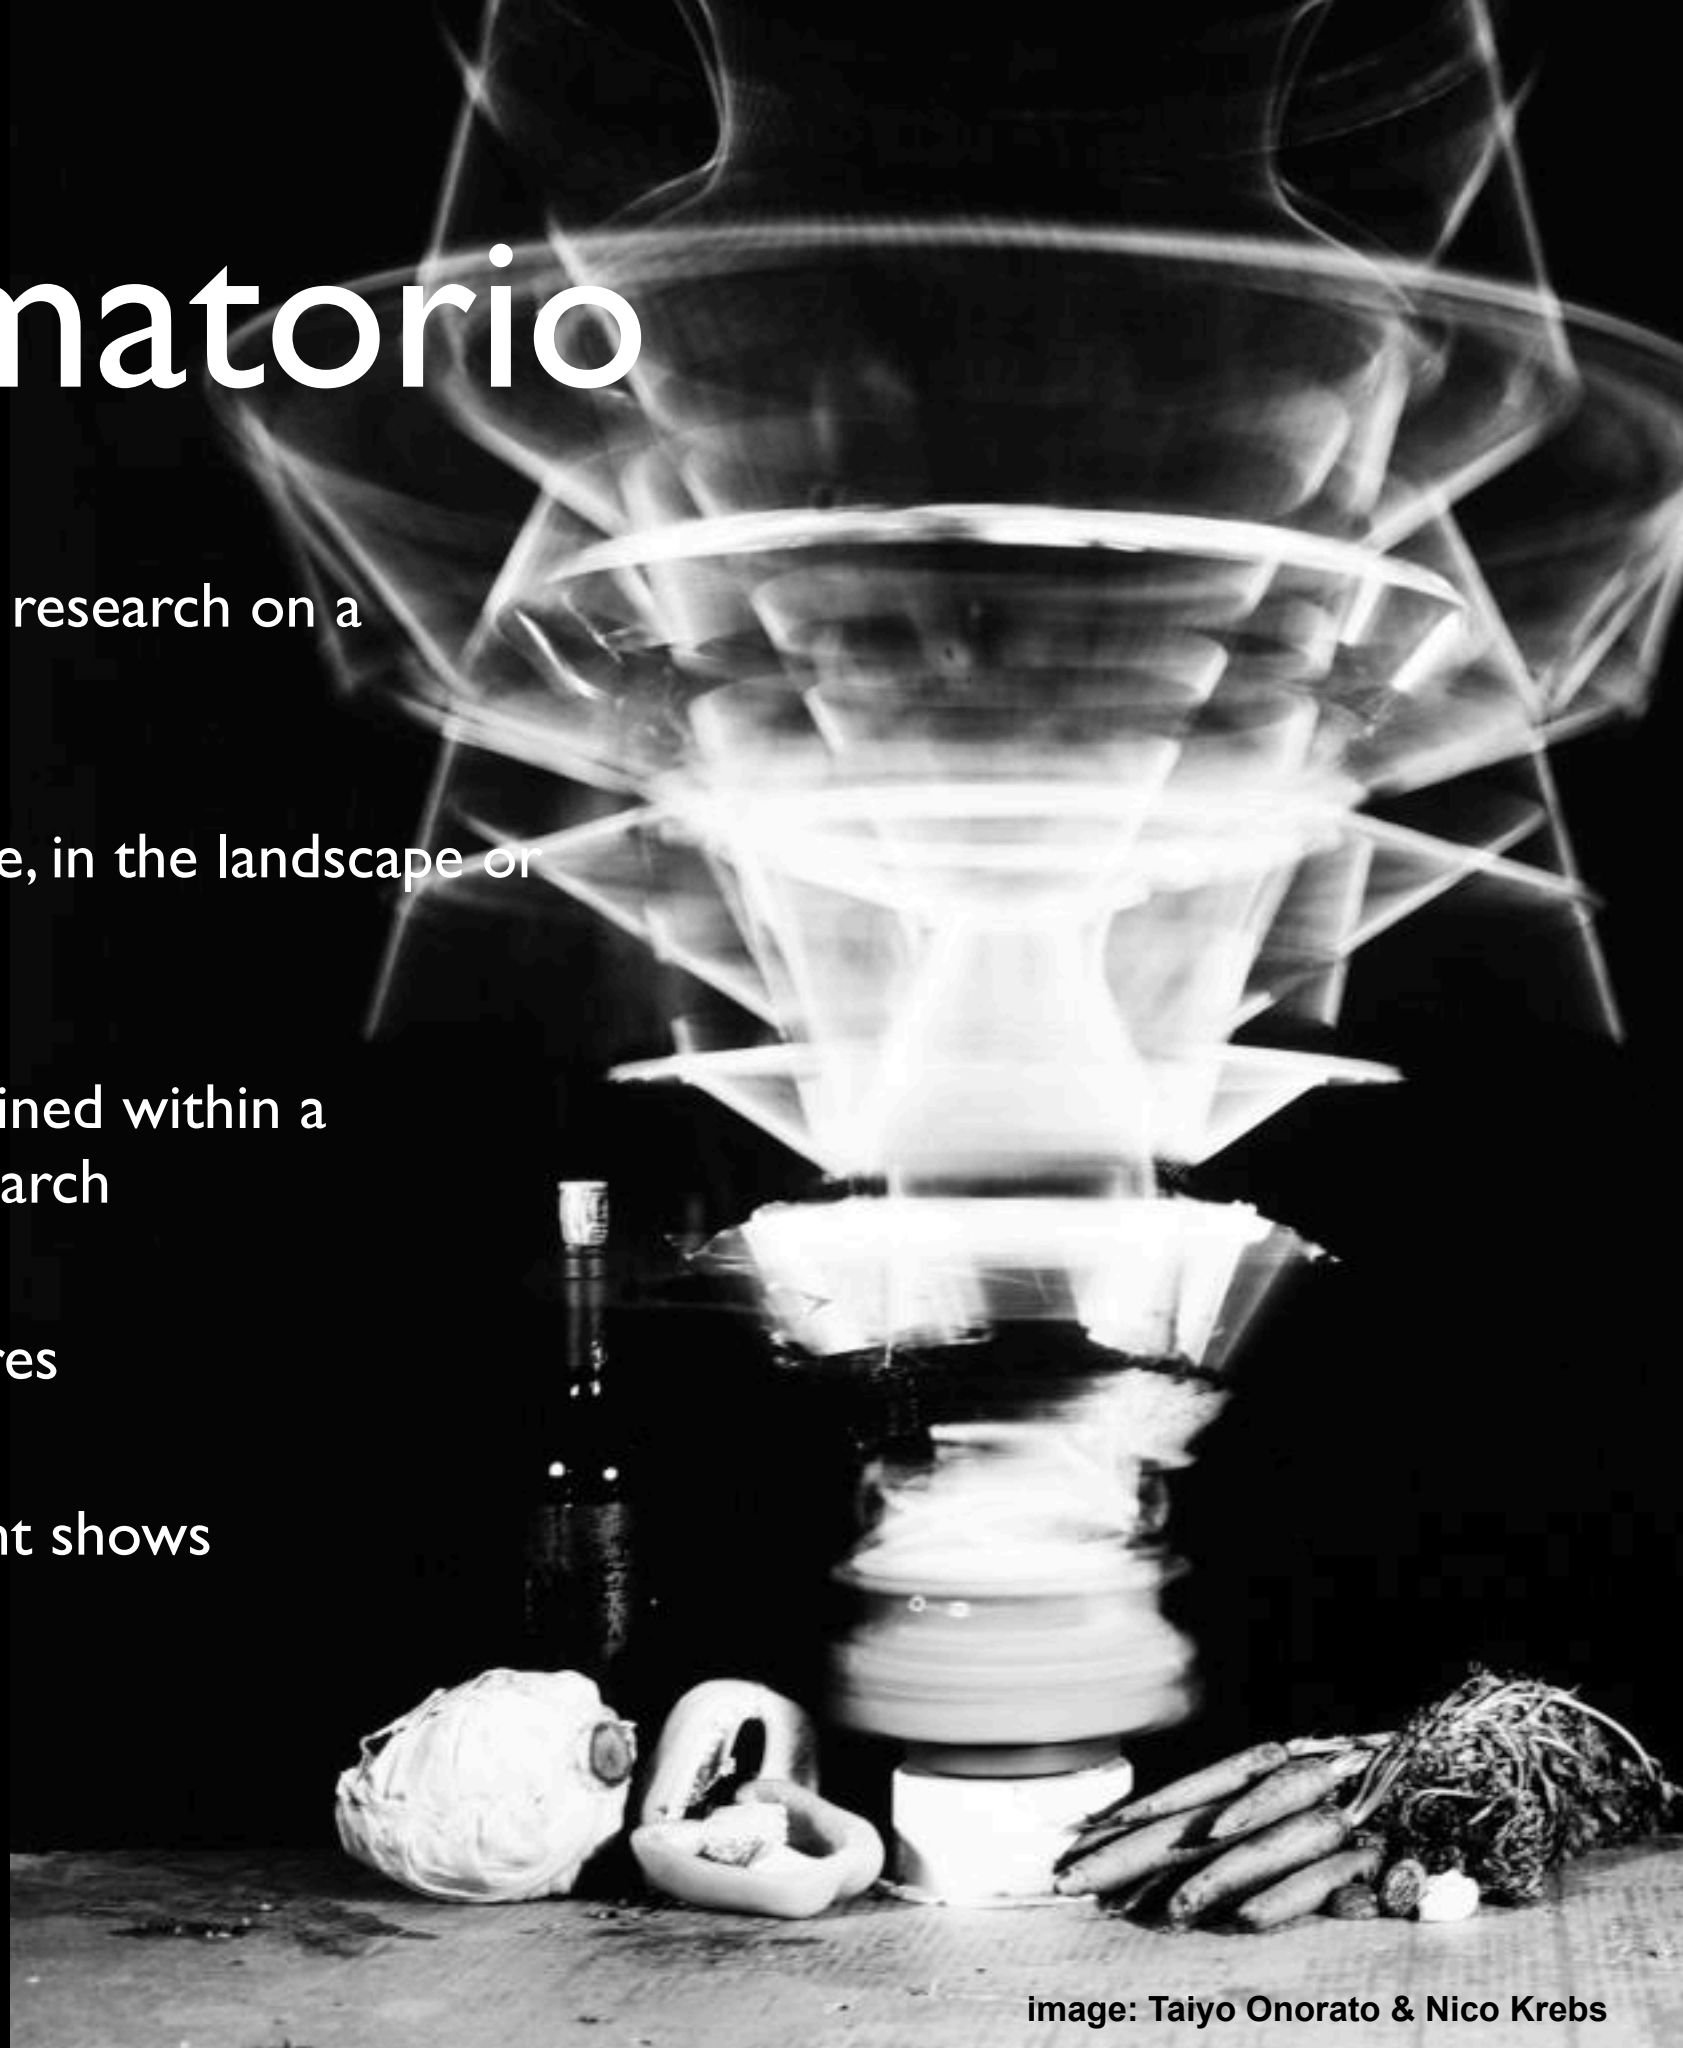

Amsterdam

www.trasformatorio.net

fbonelli@trasformatorio.net

Il Trasformatorio

- A international laboratory for research on a different type of performance
 - to be brought in the nature, in the landscape or in archeological sites.
 - that is produced and sustained within a sustainable culture ad research
 - that promotes open cultures
 - high impact - zero footprint shows

Il Trasformatorio

- Workshops
- open production lab
- research and formation appointment
- dissemination of methods and solutions
- re-design
- technical research together with the artistic and the social

photo: Federico Bonelli

Places

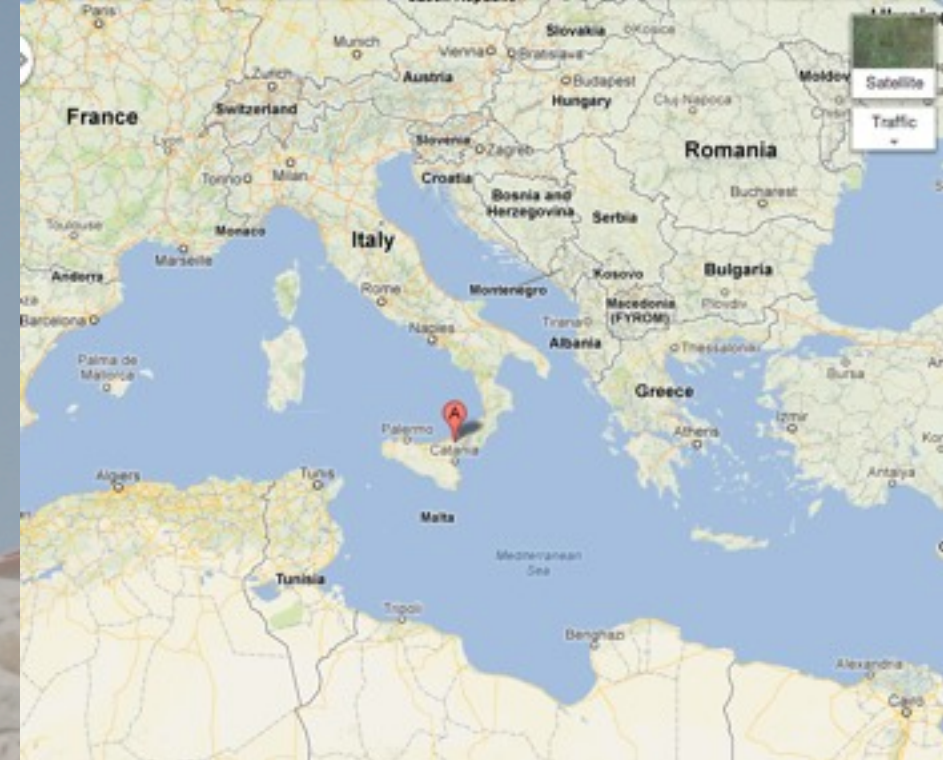

the city of Montalbano
Elicona

The city of Montalbano

A small city, one of the 100 best preserved medieval villages of Italy.

Has restored many houses of its historical center, all with services and small kitchen and devotes them for cultural activities. Moreover gives us the full use of the open air theaters in the castle, of the conference center, of the dining rooms and kitchens and of the city theater/cinema.

Active volcanoes: the Etna and the Stromboli on a line...

Ancient alignments in the landscape

A photograph of a XII-century castle with a red-tiled roof and a central open-air theater. The castle is built with light-colored stone and has several small, rectangular windows. The theater is a rectangular, tiered structure made of stone, located in the center of the courtyard. The background shows rolling green hills under a clear sky. The text "The XII century castle and it's open air theater" is overlaid on the left side of the image.

The XII century castle and it's open air theater

Colse by:
megalitic ruins, mediaeval and classical historical interesting sites, rivers and woods...

IL CONSORZIO UNIVERSITARIO

Runs a summer school and a master program. Has the use of an historical palace in the city and is our facilitator and inviting body.

